

Elopement with a Married Man.

About a week ago the household of a Carolina farmer, who resides in Barnwell District, was disturbed by the mysterious disappearance of one of its members, a young and con-fiding girl of some fifteen summers. Suspi-cion pointed to her disappearance with a man named Boyd, who would not require many strokes of burnt cork to constitute him "truly loil" in color, and who had abandoned his own wife and children about the same period, in the same neighborhood. Acting on this suspi-cion, the anxious and distressed father ar-rived in this city yesterday morning, in search of his absent and misguided child. Making known the object of his visit at police headquar-ters, he was accorded co-operation and soon placed him in possession of painful yet posi-tive knowledge of the correctness of his suspi-cions. Boyd, with a heartlessness only equal-ed by the cruel abandonment of his wife and children, by insinuating overtures of mar-riage, had induced the trusting girl to forsake her home to join and share his uncertain fu-tures in this city. Arriving here, he provid-ed her with a home of questionable comfort, in a rude shanty on Bay street, near Sibley's al-ley. Boyd, we are informed, has manifested great uneasiness since his arrival here, lest the father of the girl should pursue and over-take him, and has been making diligent in-quiry as to the means by which he and his com-panion could escape from the city on the free list, as he claimed not to have a dollar in the world.

When the father and the officers visited the house, yesterday morning, Boyd was said to be absent at work in Hamburg. Failing to get a glimpse of him, the father succeeded in in-ducing his daughter to return to her home, without having any collision with the man to whom she had committed herself.—Augusta Constitutional.

COMPARATIVE HEALTH OF THE NORTH AND SOUTH. The census tables of 1860 are the best answer to the inquiries of Northern emi-grants about the comparative health of the North and the South. The census tables show the death in the several States to average one in the numbers opposite the name of the State, as follows:

Alabama, . . . . . 75	Connecticut, . . . . . 74
Florida, . . . . . 79	Illinois, . . . . . 88
Georgia, . . . . . 82	Indiana, . . . . . 74
Kentucky, . . . . . 70	Maine, . . . . . 89
Louisiana, . . . . . 57	Massachusetts, . . . . . 77
Mississippi, . . . . . 64	New Hampshire, . . . . . 72
South Carolina, . . . . . 72	New York, . . . . . 12
Tennessee, . . . . . 73	Pennsylvania, . . . . . 10
Virginia, . . . . . 74	Vermont, . . . . . 95

When these Southern States, by the pro-gress of population and wealth, are as well drained and provided with the sanitary con-ditions of the Northern States here named, they will show a far more favorable return. It will be observed that less die in Georgia than in any other Southern State, and fewer than in one half of the Northern States named above.

SHALL THE CONFEDERATE DEAD BE HONORED The Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser writes as follows to that journal:

There is quite a difference in opinion in the Grand Army of the Republic in this section re-garding the decoration of the graves of Con-federate dead. Post No. 1 of this city resoly- unanimously that "while we hold no malice against the dead who fell in attempting to haul down our flag and thereby endangering the nation, we will not divide our honors by decorating Confederate graves, and thereby taint the character of those who sacrificed their lives that their country might live." Post No. 19 in Pennsylvania issues a circular say-ing that it has decided "not to pass by the graves of Confederates sleeping in our lines, but to divide each year between blue and grey the first floral offerings of a common country. We have no powerless foes. Post No 19 thinks of the Confederate dead only as brave men."
